

Magnitude 6.5 earthquake rattles Eureka in Northern California

The temblor snaps power lines, shatters windows and is felt over a wide area, but no major injuries are reported. 'It was a monstrous one,' a merchant says.

The quake created a mess at a Natural Foods store. (Shaun Walker / Eureka Times-Standard / January 9, 2010)

By Ruben Vives and Patrick McDonnell
January 10, 2010

E-mail Print Share Text Size

A magnitude 6.5 earthquake rocked the Northern California city of Eureka on Saturday, snapping power lines, toppling chimneys, knocking down traffic signals, shattering windows and prompting the evacuation of at least one apartment building.

There were no reports of major injuries, but the temblor, which struck at 4:27 p.m. about 33 miles southwest of the coastal city of 26,000, was powerful enough to send people running into the streets, some fearing a tsunami.

Centered offshore about 13 miles deep, the quake was felt as far north as central Oregon, as far south as Santa Cruz and as far east as Reno, the U.S. Geological Survey said.

"It was a monstrous one," said Phil Burns, owner of Mity Nice Bakery Cafe Restaurant in Eureka, which is about 80 miles south of the Oregon border. "Usually, they're sharp, but this one was very wiggly. It was rolling in all directions."

In the south Eureka fishing village of King Salmon, the 10 seconds of shaking broke power lines and knocked out electricity throughout the isolated seaside community of about 750 people.

When it stopped, people gathered in the street. Some were visibly distraught. Shouts of "You all right?" were heard. Then car engines began revving up as residents raced to the only access road to the closest higher ground, the 150-foot-high Bell Hill, in case of a tsunami, said William Bowman, a resident. None materialized, according to the U.S. Geological Survey.

Residents of Northern California coastal communities have reason to worry about tsunamis. In 1964, a magnitude 9.2 earthquake off the Alaskan coast sent a catastrophic tsunami to Crescent City, north of Eureka, killing 11 people.

On Saturday, 25,000 customers lost power, according to Pacific Gas & Electric Co. Water and gas

Farmers Market & Beyond »

Seasonal cooking | Food politics | Top '09 recipes

advertisement

The Latest | NEWS AS IT HAPPENS

Seahawks announce hiring of Pete Carroll - The Fabulous Forum 01/11/2010, 11:34 a.m.

Caught in the Web: Andrew Bynum trade reactions and other Lakers links - Lakers Blog 01/11/2010, 11:20 a.m.

Ford to sell electric Focus next year - L.A. Times - Business 01/11/2010, 11:16 a.m.

Stocks fluctuate ahead of Alcoa earnings report - L.A. Times - Business 01/11/2010, 11:08 a.m.

MOCA says Jeffrey Deitch is its new director - Culture Monster 01/11/2010, 11:04 a.m.

RELATED

Map: Northern California

Map: Northern California quake

PHOTOS: Earthquake in Eureka

MOST VIEWED | MOST E-MAILED

U.S. Supreme Court blocks video coverage of Prop. 8 trial

Lakers' Ron Artest hasn't been the same since concussion

USC Coach Pete Carroll eager to move to 'a whole different level' with Seahawks

Jimi Hendrix fans have a new experience in store lines were also disrupted.

Frayed nerves were evident throughout the Humboldt County region as dusk fell. Rooms at Mad River Community Hospital in Arcata, 15 miles north of Eureka, were in the dark, and patients in robes were sitting in the hallway. Generators provided only enough power to keep vital machinery working, said nursing supervisor Annie Conkler.

"Everyone's shaken, but fine," she said, adding that there were no patients with quake-related injuries coming into the emergency room.

At Myrtle Avenue Pet Center on Hubbard Lane in Eureka, owner Melanie Noe spent the evening picking up shampoo bottles and shattered dog bowls. The only other casualties were the cats' nerves, she said.

On the other side of town, lamps and dishes crashed down at Antiques and Goodies, causing a couple to run out of the store, while two women took cover under a table. "We've been through a lot of earthquakes, but I can't recall there ever being any this bad," said store owner Sandra Hall.

To the south, floodlights fell at the Humboldt County Fairgrounds, and windows shattered in Ferndale. Farther south, in Redway, shoppers abandoned their carts in a grocery store and raced to their cars.

State officials said authorities in the county have not asked for additional assistance from Sacramento.

"It looks like they will be able to handle it on their own," said Kelly Huston, a spokesman for the California Emergency Management Agency. "Our big concern now is aftershocks."

At least 10 aftershocks were reported in the hours after the temblor, the strongest of them registering 4.2.

Richard Allen, a UC Berkeley seismologist, said the area where the earthquake occurred was in the Mendocino Triple Junction, where three tectonic plates collide: the Pacific, North American and Juan de Fuca. It is one of the most seismically active parts of the San Andreas fault system that runs through the state.

"Although 6.5 is a large event, it is not uncommon there by any means," said Richard Buckmaster, a U.S. Geological Survey geophysicist.

The last major quakes in the offshore region, Buckmaster said, were magnitude 7.2 and 6.6 temblors in June 2005.

ruben.vives@latimes.com

patrick.mcdonnell@latimes.com

Times staff writers Esmeralda Bermudez, Cara Mia DiMassa, Rong-Gong Lin II and Louis Sahagun contributed to this report.

Copyright © 2010, The Los Angeles Times

E-mail Print Digg Twitter Facebook StumbleUpon Share

COMMENTS (4) | Add Comment

Calm this morning in Ferndale. Glass still in piles along the sidewalks, businesses still cleaning up inside and outside of shops. Today we should know more about if any structures were significantly damaged.

firewise (01/10/2010, 8:13 AM)

Report Comment

Quake started with some minor rolling for about 4-6 seconds and then WHAM serious shaking with pickup trucks bouncing like toy cars for another 5-6 seconds. No reports of serious structure damage in Ferndale, about 20 storefront windows came out. No reports of injuries or fires in

Debate over cognitive, traditional mental health therapy

Northern Ireland in uproar over lawmaker's secret affair with teen

How would a new health insurance pool work?

'X Factor' debut could mean a Simon Cowell-less 'American Idol'

More young Los Angeles Jews get free trips to Israel

Tijuana reels amid a surge of violence

Fitness Gadget »

Pedometers are relatively inexpensive, and evidence indicates that they motivate people.

Home Technology »

Technology is reshaping home life in ways big and small, from the front door to the back patio.

ferndale either. I was downtown when it happen, ran home to make sure the kids were OK, wires arcing and sparking. Didnt sleep to well last night
firewise (01/10/2010, 8:08 AM)

Report Comment

Has anybody ever used the word "temblor" in conversation?
bcerveny (01/10/2010, 5:46 AM)

Report Comment

See All comments

If you are under 13 years of age you may read this message board, but you may not participate. Here are the full legal terms you agree to by using this comment form. Comments are filtered for language and registration is required. Web and/or e-mail addresses are not permitted. Note: Comments are moderated and will not appear until they have been reviewed by Los Angeles Times staff.

In Case You Missed It...

Controversial roundup of wild horses underway

2010 predictions: Another turbulent year ahead for media

Photos: On wave alert in Seal Beach

Hushing the intruders in her brain

Terror suspect's family expresses shock

Save more than 50% off the newsstand price. Click here to subscribe to The Times.

News

Local
U.S. & World
Business
Technology
Sports
Opinion
Columnists
Obituaries

Entertainment

Television
Movies
Music
Arts & Culture
Celebrity
The Envelope
Calendar
Company Town
TV Listings
Movie Listings
Tickets

Living

Travel
Health
Food
Home
Image
Magazine
Books
Autos
Hot List
Horoscopes
Crosswords

Multimedia

Video
Photos
Data Desk
Your Scene
Times on Twitter
RSS
Newsletters
Kindle
E-edition

Top Blogs

L. A. Now
Fabulous Forum
Politics
TV Show Tracker
Music
Technology
Ministry of Gossip
Company Town
Lakers
Travel & Deals

More

Corrections
Readers' Rep
Contact Us | Help
About Us
Events
LATMG Media Kit
Print Edition
Subscribe
Manage My Account
Site Map

Coastline Pilot | Daily Pilot | Huntington Beach Independent | Valley Sun | Burbank Leader | News Press | KTLA | Hoy | Brand X |
LA, Los Angeles Times Magazine | ZAP2it |
Baltimore Sun | Chicago Tribune | Daily Press | Hartford Courant | Los Angeles Times | Orlando Sentinel | Sun Sentinel | The Morning Call |
Terms of Service | Privacy Policy | Los Angeles Times, 202 West 1st Street, Los Angeles, California, 90012 | Copyright 2010

A Tribune Web site